With Gratitude:
A Message from the Board Chair & Executive Director

Thank you for the role that you play in protecting the Adirondack Park for future generations. If you have posted a photo of the Adirondacks, signed a petition, responded to an Action Alert, hiked a less travelled trail, volunteered, made a purchase, or written a check in support of the Adirondack Council, you have invested in wilderness, communities, air and water, forests and farms, and leadership. As you read the highlights of the past 12 months in the pages that follow, know that you helped make this possible.

More people than ever are finding refuge within the Blue Line. Whether you sleep more peacefully under pine boughs or shingle, everyone is passionate about whatever it is that brings us or keeps us in the Park. Within its six million acres, there is a place that we think of as ours. We need to hold that thought, to recognize, and to address the importance of being a welcoming place for all.

There are challenges ahead and an expanded Adirondack Council team has the breadth and depth to address them. We are fortunate to have such a talented and experienced group of conservation professionals monitoring and responding to actions that impact the ecological integrity, wild character, and vibrant communities of the Park.

Together, with your support, more Adirondack Council members and broad constituent engagement, we are shaping tomorrow’s Adirondacks. Thank you for being a steward of the Adirondack Park. Thank you for your support of the Adirondack Council.

With much gratitude,

Sarah C. Hatfield
Board Chair

William C. Janeway
Executive Director
THANK YOU!

Thank You to All Members!
The Staff and Board extend our sincere gratitude to everyone who supported the Council with contributions of time and funding this year. With thousands of membership level contributors, we apologize that we cannot list everyone – at least not with large enough type to represent the gratitude we feel for your support. Whether you gave a membership contribution at the $35 to $249 level, became a sustaining member, or purchased a new Council mug, your support provided the Council with the financial resources to do conservation and advocacy work for the Adirondacks every day. We appreciate your support and hope you take personal pride in the Council’s many accomplishments for the Adirondacks that you help make possible. Thank you!

Adirondack Conservation & Advocacy Online
Social media, blogs, and email are the most effective means of communicating with our Adirondack conservation advocates across the globe. With an annual reach of over 1.2 million people, social media provides the Adirondack Council with a huge opportunity to educate about the 7 Leave No Trace principles and promote responsible stewardship of the Adirondacks. Thanks for your online engagement, social sharing, and the likes!

Defending Wilderness

The NYS Court of Appeals ruled in favor of constitutional protections preserving the “Forever Wild” public Forest Preserve from destruction by state actions to cut thousands of trees and build road-like snowmobile trails. The Council supports legal but not illegal snowmobile trails. On another front, the state released and started implementing the Adirondack High Peaks Wilderness Overuse Advisory Group recommendations by the Council, state officials, and others. These actions are the start to enhancing the preservation of Adirondack Wilderness, access, the safety of visitors and residents, and community needs. Initial public and private efforts include more Leave-No-Trace education, trailhead stewards, a shuttle, new trails, investments in science, and a commitment to improved visitor use management.

“I know this past year has been extraordinarily difficult but I am proud that our commitment to the environment, outdoor recreation and a greener, cleaner future have only grown stronger as we focus on our post pandemic recovery. The Adirondacks became that place of healing and recovery. As we look to the future, we want to continue protecting our natural resources.”

Preserving Clean Water

The Council worked with partners, including the Adirondack Common Ground Alliance to secure passage of a new Aquatic Invasive Species Transport Bill that will strengthen and make permanent protections for Adirondack waters from invasive species. The bill requires certification that motorized watercraft are free of invasive species before launching in Adirondack waters. This becomes effective with the signature of Gov. Kathy Hochul. Further, the Council issued the latest of three comprehensive reports identifying hundreds of millions of dollars of Clean Water Infrastructure needs in the Adirondack Park and scaled up advocacy actions to address failing septic systems. The Council has helped secure more than $58 million in grant funding for wastewater treatment systems in Park communities since 2015.

Climate and Justice

Federal leadership promoted clean energy, rejoined the Paris Climate Accord, and restored limits on acid rain. In NY state, the Council joined more than 175 organizations to successfully advocate for legislative approval of a $3 Billion (now proposed as a $4 Billion) environmental bond act for the November 2022 ballot. If voters approve, this can support climate justice, emission reductions of at least 85% by 2050, sequestration, resiliency and adaptation. In addition, $250,000 was secured for the Adirondack Diversity Initiative and the state legislature passed a bill to establish the New York Soil Health and Resiliency Act to help farms meet climate goals. And the Council adopted updated values, new equity practices, and established a Justice, Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion (JEDI) committee of the Board.

Combating Air Pollution

In a significant victory for clean air, the U.S. Court of Appeals for D.C. Circuit overturned the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Trump-era decision that denied New York and New Jersey protection from smog and acid rain generated by coal-fired power plants in the Midwest. The Council joined with NYS Attorney General James, the Environmental Defense Fund, and the Sierra Club in a lawsuit to fight these EPA rollbacks and protect Northeast states and sensitive wildlife habitat from upwind air pollution.
“What better time to act than now to make this the true park it has the potential to be, to ensure that the Adirondacks will forever be a wild island of hope for New Yorkers and the world, and to serve as a global model for integrated land use and conservation.”

The mission of the Adirondack Council is to ensure the ecological integrity and wild character of the Adirondack Park for current and future generations.
Supporting Local Farms

Through ongoing efforts to preserve open space and support working farms, the Council’s Essex Farm Institute (EFI) program awarded 21 micro-grants on Earth Day ’21 totaling $29,601 to local farmers and value-added food producers, in an effort to build a climate-friendly local economy in the Adirondack Park. EFI also worked collaboratively with partners to strengthen and promote a more resilient regional food system.
The mission of the Adirondack Council is to ensure the ecological integrity and wild character of the Adirondack Park for current and future generations.
Rewilding in the Adirondacks and Beyond

New York’s Adirondack Park is a remarkably successful experiment in conservation, but the Park is far from finished. Some key wildlife species are missing or perilously diminished. The Council is committed to helping make the Park an even greater, more complete example of how people can coexist with other species and wilderness. The Council hired John Davis, the Rewilding Institute Executive Director and a renowned naturalist as a half-time Rewilding Advocate, to support conservation and advocacy work to expand, better protect and connect wilderness and other wildlife habitat, to benefit moose and other species.
Building Back Stronger

Through the generosity of supporters and prudent investment strategies, the Council was able to build back stronger through the pandemic and transitions. Due to the breadth and depth of the expanded team, the Council is able to address current threats to the Park and proactively seek long-term solutions to challenges that face the Adirondacks.

“For the past 70 years, I’ve hiked, climbed, biked and paddled over the face of God, which to me is the Adirondacks. I know how critically important the Park is for the world, as lungs. We must take steps to keep the wildlands of the Adirondacks as pristine as we can and respect other species as we respect our own. The work of the Council is critically important, they are on the political frontlines protecting this magnificent treasure. That is why I am proud to support the work of the Adirondack Council and to be a Legacy Society member - ensuring my voice continues to speak for the preservation of this magnificent landscape, its peaks, valleys, wildlands and waters.”

The Adirondack Council has made every effort to ensure the accuracy of these lists. If you discover an error, please contact us at 877.873.2240.
The mission of the Adirondack Council is to ensure the ecological integrity and wild character of the Adirondack Park for current and future generations.

IN HONOR

Barbara L. Glaser and the Clarence Petty Internship Program

Barbara Glaser has been involved with the Adirondack Council for decades, serving on the Board of Directors, including a term as Chair of the Board of Directors.

In July, Barbara received the 2021 Conservationist of the Year Award from the Adirondack Council.

Barbara stepped forward to support the Council’s Clarence Petty Internship Program, and issued a fundraising match challenge, which was successful in pushing the Clarence Petty Internship Fund above $500,000.

This tremendous effort was made possible by donors like you who made a special gift in Barbara’s honor and will be celebrated for years to come.

This ensures that the Council will be able to continue its tradition of guiding the next generation of conservationists while providing young people with increased opportunities and experience as they join the workforce.

There is just one hope of repulsing the tyrannical ambition of civilization to conquer every niche on the whole earth. That hope is the organization of spirited people who will fight for the freedom of the wilderness.
